March 2009

TO: Heads of Governments of the G20

The Board of the International Co-operative Alliance (ICA) is particularly concerned that the G20 at its meeting in April 2009 in London, examines every option in seeking to overcome the current financial crisis.

In that regard I attach a letter that the ICA is resending to all the G20 governments asking them to give serious consideration to the advantages of the co-operative model of business.

With over 150 years of commercial success in all economic fields, it is our conviction that co-operative enterprise, with its unique set of values and principles, can provide possible solutions particularly in promoting stability in the global economy.

Yours sincerely

Iain Macdonald
Director General
